CHAPTER XVII.

Rasher's walk with Mary Brook was the first of many. When his hours of work permitted he went with her up the long hill to her gateway, where he said good-night and turned back to his boarding house with its smell of grease and stale tobacco smoke.

If the secretary to the manager felt a difference in their station she gave no sign. She accepted him at his face value—a pleasant young man about whom there was a glamour of mystery. "Are you wise in seeing so much of him?" asked her mother. "You don't know anything about him, do you?" "No, mother, hardly anything, but I'm convinced he's decent and honest. I like him and believe in him"-an answer that increased rather than allayed her mother's concern. Rasher's acceptance into the full fellowship of friendship came when she asked if he would care to go with her to visit some of the poor families she was helping. "You will see the insides of the lives many of these people live," she said. Together they went, and in time he began to share with her, though to a lesser degree, their kindly regards. Mysterious events followed these visits.

Mrs. Levinsky, distressed to a shadow by the illness of one of her seven children, was made happy by an unexpected visit from a strange doctor who effected a cure and asked no pay. The little Rashky girl, condemned by a tedious illness to a miserable bed overlooking a muddy courtyard, was restored to health by the same unknown doctor. Old Biskoff, broken down after years of service, was amazed one day to find near his doorstep a purse con

Impressions spread swiftly in a community whose interests are bound up in a single concern. Workmen began quietly observing Rasher. From their families came queer stories about the good luck that followed his visits. These stories soon reached Mr. Stabb. Ever since the day when, his head still swimming from the blow

Rasher had struck, he had seen his secretary and the truck driver go off together he had nursed a double grievance. That he find not discharged the man was something he could not explain even to himself. Now, however, Mr. Stabb determined to act. Rasher must be gotten out of town before his hold upon the imaginations of the people became a menace. But first he must be discredited, humiliated, and stripped his glamour. Mr. Stabb sent for a man who had in the past executed many devious commissions for him. 'Tony," he said, "you know this man Rasher who "Sure," answered Tony; "he loafs around the Popular Poolroom in the evenings. A quiet duck."

"Well," said Mr. Stabb, "there's something quee about him. I don't know what he's up to, but I believe he's dangerous. He must be run out of town What you say goes," remarked Tony confidently. "That bird will be glad to get out of town before I'm through with him."

HICAGO'S most comprehensive display of pianos may be seen in our salesrooms. Come in for a demonstration. Over 300 instruments are shown. All tastes and pocketbooks can be suited. If you are in any way interested in a good instrument, come in! The pianos shown would furnish you invaluable aid in making your purchase. The values are dependable. Each piano is plainly priced and tagged. Selected groups merit your visit. Be sure to see them.

Popular Uprights

Shrewd piano buyers will save much on the purchase of a piano from this group. Prices begin at $380. The instruments are new, thoroughly reliable, and sweettoned. They are beautifully finished. You would be proud to have one in your home. The saving effected would delight you.

Player pianos

Here are instruments that are worthy of unskilled. They promise years of entertainment. The pleasure which you would derive from one this winter alone would amply repay you for the initial cost. The instruments are of the finest character. Brass hardware is used throughout. They have genuine ivory keys. They are very easy to pedal. They are equipped with tracker bar and transposing device. These permit you to play the same piece in several keys, a decided advantage for vocal accompaniments. Why not let us send one of these instruments to you?

Apartment Grands

The peak of the war found these delightful instruments priced much higher than that for which you can now get them. They are most unusual values. Dainty and graceful in design, they occupy hardly more space than an upright piano. The tone is unexcelled. When you play, the notes flow from beneath your fingers in richly colored harmonies. They are instruments which truly sing under the fingers. They contain the basic Lyon & Healy improvements—the Candelectra, Silento, and Junior Unfolding Two-Level Pedal. Whether or not you are interested in buying a piano you should see this last named feature. It revolutionizes the playing of the children. Prices begin

A business man's evening

What do your evenings at home mean to you? Do you look forward to them with pleasure? Are they hours which you enjoy with your family in mutual pursuits? It is then that your wife and your children look to you for companionship. Do you deny yourself to them? Do you take the office home with you? Are you denying yourself the right enjoyment of your leisure hours? Music makes homelife happy. An evening of music would pay you a liberal dividend on your investment. When you come home at night tired and worn you would find yourself refreshed by it. This is a thought well worth your consideration.

Duo-Art Reproducing Pianos

The pleasures derived from the possession of one of these pian is are incalculablé. The Duo-Art enables you to hear the music of the masters. Place in the piano a roll recorded by Paderewski and it is as if the pianist himself played in person for you. Were you to be in the next room and knew his touch, you would not be able to tell whether or not it was he in person. Made in six pianos, the Duo-Art is offered in a wide variety of models and styles. Prices on the upright Duo-Arts begin at $795.

A purely nominal first payment

Our purchase plan is most unusual. Come in and choose your instrument. The only down payment is a small cartage fee. Monthly payments may be arranged to suit your convenience. Musical instruments of all kinds taken in exchange. This liberal plan brings a piano within reach of all. Come in! An early visit will afford a wider selection.

Steinways

The display of Steinways is a most interesting one. These magnificent pianos are shown in all models and styles. "The Instrument of the Immortals," the Steinway is today the delight of musical homes. Prices are very reasonable. Most convenient terms may be arranged. The upright models are priced at $875 and up.

Music as a tonic

Business men more than ever are beginning to realize the necessity of diversion. They know the value of relaxation. The demands of business are so great that nervous energy is soon exhausted, unless replenished daily. Music acts on the mind like a surf bath on the body-it washes away fatigue andworry. It is aperfect tonic.

Our Faith in the Future

ORE than fifty years ago the man whose name this business bears, inspired by faith in what he believed to be almost unlimited possibilities for business development in this country, demonstrated his faith by investing his resources and energies on a scale which seemed unwise to men of lesser vision.

Those who now carry on the business have not allowed this faith to lessen; the vision has grown constantly wider and greater. The business has reached a development represented in the illustrations above. These are tangible evidences of our present faith.

The prosperity of such an organization as Marshall Field & Company—employing over 17,000 American citizens, serving Chicago and its environs through its Retail Store; serving almost every community of the nation through the 40,000 merchant customers of its Wholesale; producing varied and extensive lines of merchandise in mills, factories and shops located in seven States—is closely involved with the prosperity of business in general as well as with that of every citizen. As extensive manufacturers, as the largest wholesale-retail channel for the distribution of merchandise produced by American labor, its success is allied with the success of all classes of American business.

The business of Marshall Field & Company is the reflection of public need, taste and desire; of public spirit and loyalty. Its growth has been, and will proportion to its public service.

We are gratified to record for 1921 a turnover of merchandise in our wholesale, manufacturing and converting operations, much larger than for previous year, though the volume in dollars did not equal 1920. Our record show a large increase in customers.

During the year we have bent all our energies to the reduction of price sistently with our aim at all times to give our customers the maximum of Leading dry goods merchants generally were prompt in taking losses i rapidly declining markets. By forcing sales and by wise, conservative by they placed themselves in a position to operate at the new low price level.

In industrial sections of the country numerous dry goods merchants turnovers for 1921 approximating, and in many cases exceeding, those of pre years. In agricultural sections reports are not as favorable, but most merchante operated cautiously, and stocks generally appear to be in good conditions.

We again affirm our responsibility to the public, and pledge ourselves of greater service—service in merchandise and service in performance. We 1922 with courage and with faith.

An Open Letter To MARY GARDEN-

Dear Miss Garden: We have heard your wonderful voice—seen your acting. We have heard you in "Thais," "La Boheme," "Aida." We address you today as a high priestess of the two arts, music and the drama. We know you appreciate genius wherever found. We know you are intensely responsive to the skilled expression of human emotion, whether that expression take the form of music, of literature, of sculpture, of painting or of the drama. And knowing this, we ask you to behold a most noble work of a newborn art-the filmplay "Theodora."

Here truly you will find an unusual melody, Miss Garden. It will pervade you through your sense of vision with no less of color, of warmth, of tonal beauty than if you were an enthralled auditor at some great symphony concert. The harmony of great vistas will charm you-pleasant gardens with fountains and noble statuary, great cities stretched before you, their marbles glinting in the sunshine, and beautiful women. You will sense the diapason of a mob's unrest, cluttering drumbeats of a thousand flying steeds, the awful dissonance of clashing legions. And, Miss Garden, always there will be the joyous, pitiful minor of love-

To you and to many of us, many thousands of us, who lack your talent of expression, but share your gift of appreciation-this Goldwyn filmplay "Theodora' will be more than a brilliant spectacle, superbly beautiful, unbelievably massive. It will be an unforgettable opera, a feast for all the senses, a real event, the greatest film spectacle of all times.

You will be welcomed at our Roosevelt Theater, Miss Garden, while this extraordinary work of genius is being exhibited. We want you and your admirers not to miss it. Sincerely,

ASCHER'S ROOSEVELT THEATER.

If you're not worrying too much about the girth of the star, you are going to have a pretty good time at this picture. You will like Miss Lee as your favorite's vis-a-vis; you'll adore the chubby Gertrude Short, who is always-hungry and always eating. You'll realize that everybody else in the piece does good work, including Mr. Reid's dog, who was quite certainly human at one time, or will be in the

New Year's Reception

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1 .- [Spe-

al.]-When tomorrow the President and Mrs. Harding reinstate the time nored New Year's day reception in the White House they will have given back to Washington one of its most ancient and cherished institutions.

The liveliest interest is felt in the revival of the function inaugurated by the First President and Mrs. Washington not only by Americans but by nembers of the diplomatic corps and foreign delegations, many of whom will attend it for the first time.

There will be several innovations in dent and Mrs. Harding will receive alone, the cabinet members and their wives first greeting their hosts on the second floor of the mansion and descending the grand stairway with them, where behind the line they will be joined by a group including the chief justice and Mrs. Taft, the speaker and Mrs. Gillett, Representa-

lews We Have Printed in Eighteen Years!

5000 Yards of Wash Laces

Beginning tomorrow, the familiar S. & H. Stamps become as good as cash in this store.

Here's the story: With every purchase at Rothschilds' you get, besides reliable merchandise, besides splendid values, besides low prices -you get the extra saving (given you by no other State Street Department Store) of the nationally known "S. & H." Stamps. Heretofore these were redeemable, in books of 1,000 stamps, for premiums only. Now they are redeemable for any merchandise in this store. We've always said they were as good as cash, and here we prove it anew with the goods on our counters. Now every S. & H. Stamp issued here is backed up with the millions of dollars' worth of Rothschild merchandise. With this announcement we place S. & H. Stamps on a new, better and broader basis-so very much better that any family can well afford to save these stamps, and most of us can hardly afford not to. Study the picture a minute. It tells the story in condensed form. We are discontinuing the old 1,000-Stamp Books, but all holders of such books will be given ample time to redeem them for $2.00 worth of merchandise or for S. & H. premiums as before. Partly filled books can be completed and redeemed also. We are issuing a new, smaller book, pocket edition, to hold only 660 stamps and redeemable for $1.25 in merchandise or $1.00 in cash.

If you have been saving S. & H. Stamps you will be liberally repaid now for your thrift. If you have not, then begin with this New Year. We will help you make 1922 the most thrifty, economical and downright prosperous year you ever lived, so far as your household expenses are concerned.

Tomorrow, Tuesday, being the opening day of this plan, we will give double S. & H. Stamps with every purchase, a double saving.

Can be used for camisoles, baby dresses, undermuslins, lingeries, etc. They are stounding values, and the prices will surely Probably we are still in that period of uncertain readjustment to the new economic conditions and probably we shall remain in it for some time to come. Yet the subsequent course of event may show that the great rise of investment bond prices in last November, the spectacular recovery of foreign exchange in December, and the notable change in the question of international relations, political and economic, which was coming into view during both those months, were themselves the sign that a new chapter in the world's after-war economic history had begun last autumn. It will extend, at any rate, into the coming year.

B-USED AUTOMOBILES-5 B-USED AUTOMOBILES—5

An old established and thoroughly reliable automobile dealer wishes to dispose of 5 rood 1920 light 4 cylinder touring cars to some concern considering the purchase of cars for their salesmen. Something that will give rasoline, oil, and tire mileage at a slight cost and at the same time give both the purchaser and driver a confidence in this particular make that will eventually develop into other sales or trade-in deals on the later models of the same make.

Do not wish to trade in old cars on this special deal, as all of the 5 cars are practically and price low south to interest cash buyers.

Tens can be arranged. Address T P 224.
